

Technicolor Disc service email

Subject line - Is dealing with multiple vendors costing you money?

“Technicolor’s end-to-end process control means predictability, lower production costs and faster time to market.”

“The Technicolor team provides you with market leading expertise and is dedicated to getting your disc to market as fast as possible.”

Every delay in getting a DVD to market costs you money. But unfortunately delays occur frequently when you’re dealing with multiple vendors contributing to different elements of the disc.

Technicolor, however, provides the complete end-to-end service for encoding both small and large capacities and getting your disc to market as fast as possible.

Whether it’s subtitling, localization, copyright cards or menu design, we streamline the entire DVD production process and remove the risk of production delays. Our people take pride in delivering the highest quality and most efficient disc service available; it’s this dedication that keeps us at the forefront of the industry.

We understand that your needs change for different projects. This is why we provide operational flexibility, with customized menu design and flexible pricing, to match your DVD sales objectives.

With our high volume capabilities, technical innovation and complete supply chain management, Technicolor is the name you can trust to get your DVD to market in the fastest possible time.

Visit your own personalised website to find out more.

Matt Ambrose – The Copywriter’s Crucible

Website: <http://copywriterscrucible.com>

Email: matt@copywriterscrucible.com